

Lori Evans
Administrative Assistant

Lori Evans is a farmer's daughter, born and raised in central Nevada (a.k.a. the middle of nowhere). In middle school, her family made the move to Nampa, Idaho, where she still resides. Growing up, she was her daddy's helper, grabbing the right socket or wrench needed to change a gearbox on a sprinkler pivot. During summers in high school, she was cheap (free) labor for her dad, helping him install and service irrigation systems in the Treasure Valley.

After High School, Lori continued her education at the College of Idaho, where she maintained a 3.75 GPA and graduated in June 2007 with a BA in History and a German Minor. While in college, she did work-study for the Human Resources and Development offices. Also, while in college, Lori was a part-time cashier for The Sports Authority. After graduating college, Lori was promoted to Operations Manager at Sports Authority. After 5 years there, she moved to Dick's Sporting Goods as the Customer Service Specialist. In May 2009, Lori married a very wonderful and patient man, who has been supportive of her career growth.

Lori has acquired good customer service experience from years in retail. She is a people-person, who enjoys helping people find what they need. She is detail oriented and very inquisitive. It is those skills and that attitude that caused Scythe and Spade to recruit her, and Lori joining us has proven a real benefit to the company. She has already mastered many complicated processes after a few short months on the job.
